

EAGLE'S
C.B.C.

C. F. GREENE

Good morning, neighbors:
We start off with a correction received in a letter from Mrs. J. Jeffrey of Manitou, Manitoba, who writes: Last Sunday you mentioned the wedding anniversary of my parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Gilbert. This was erroneously reported as their 60th—when it should have been their 50th. It was corrected in the following issue of the Manitou Western Canadian. Well, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert of Clearwater—if you are listening in, may we say we hope to have the pleasure next year of congratulating you on your 60th wedding anniversary.

Just starting out on their married life is this couple mentioned in the Vermilion Standard, Alberta. Marriage one day last month at Bolsover, England, climaxed a Canadian-English pen-pal friendship, that began thirty 15 years ago. James Blake, aged 29 years, of Vermilion, Alberta, married Marjory Chambers, 27, of Carr Vale, England. James went overseas to see his pen pal last December. The correspondence started when the two were children, through the Winnipeg Free Press pen pal page. The happy couple are making their home in Vermilion.

Two other happily married couples make the headlines in their local papers. The Moose Mountain Star-Standard, Saskatchewan, congratulates Mr. and Mrs. George McKernacher of the Kinsey district on their 60th—and the Carleton Place News of Steinbach, Manitoba, offers its hearty congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Gottlieb Schinkel on the occasion of their 60th wedding anniversary. Nine out of their 10 children were present at the celebration.

Here's a lady who had something to celebrate. According to the Modern Times, Manitoba, the golfer's dream, a hole-in-one, became a reality the other weekend for Mrs. R. A. Milne. Teeing off on the third hole, her perfect shot travelled 120 yards to drop in the cup. Three witnesses were present to verify her report—Nothing, Bob, A. Macaulay and H. F. Harp.

Also in the realm of sport, we noted in Bill Robinson's Rod and Gun column published in several Manitoba weeklies, this unusual fish story. Gordon Briscoe of Dauphin was getting pretty chuffed off with the pickles. Nothing in the tackle box seemed to work... so he took a nice red radish out of his lunch box and stuck it on the hook. First catch got a lovely seven-pound pike.

Then too the Claresholm Local Press, Alberta, quotes one of its neighbors, Joe Sletteda as saying: "I've been trying 23 years to catch a big one like this—as he smilingly showed a brown trout weighing four and one-half pounds, which he caught in the north fork of Wilsey Creek.

About fishing—or fishing grounds—the Rosestown Eagle, Sask., has this to say: "Last weekend we went fishing in the beautiful country north of Meadow Lake. The fishing was good and we got our limit of pickerel in a few hours. But there was one thing that almost completely spoiled the trip for us and that was the general public's disregard for the care of these fishing places and campsites. The provincial government department responsible for such places has cleared the ground for picnicking and cooking, as well as comfort stations. One would think that these privileged to use them would treat them with even a minimum of consideration for sanitation and appearance. So we were disappointed. The campsites are littered with every type of garbage.

Well, it is surprising that some of us spoil them heavily and then back to Bill Robinson who states: "Don't be surprised if you see mallards with pink or green wings this year! You are not seeing things. These are birds that have been specially colored for research purposes by the Illinois Natural History Survey."

The word History makes one think of school days—and in this case of disappointed school children. The North Battleford News-Optimist reports that the children in the Coochin school had voted 100 percent for Daylight Saving Time—and since the school trustees didn't care either way, the school clock was set an hour ahead. However, later it was found that the majority of parents wanted school on Standard Time. So on May 13 the clock was set back an hour to Standard Time—for a bunch of disappointed children.

Well, children, your Mothers know best, remember—which reminds us that, according to the Melfort Journal, Sask., W. J. Leatham of the Silver Park district owns a mare who is a firm believer in Mother's Day. On Mother's Day last year she presented her owner with a nice foal, and on Mother's Day this year she repeated the performance.

"That's good" agree another two Saskatchewan neighbors, "but don't you think it's a little late?" Watson Witsness notes that Mr. and Mrs. P. Sakundali, farming east of Waton, keep a small dairy herd—eight cows to be exact. In March one of the cows presented her owners with twin calves. In April another cow produced twins. And on May 20th, a third cow followed suit, to make it three sets of twins this spring from a herd of only eight cows.

Let's leave the farm yard and go into the garden via the Touchwood Times of Pelly, Sask., whose editor states: We received a card this morning from William Walker in Vancouver, who writes: "Having a nice time—just cut the lawn." No need to go to Vancouver for a good time—you can cut our lawn any time... comments the Watson Witsness editor.

And this is as good a time as any to pass on congratulations to these good neighbors celebrating 90-and-over birthday anniversaries. Mrs. Mamie Haddock of Grandview, Man., 90—Mrs. E. Major of Russell, Man.—Mrs. Lily Brunnington of Invermay, Sask.—Mrs. Jane Taggart of Langdon, Alta.—Helen Lyons of Carberry, Man.—all 91. Mrs. Janet Henderson of the Spruce Creek district, Man., 95—Peter McCormick of Wapella, Sask., 94—Mrs. K. Stewart of Chateau, Man., 95—Thomas Rodgers of Sanford, Man., also 95—and Grandfather March of Rosefeld, Man., 100 years old last Sunday.

Speaking of years—the Assiniboine Times, Sask., editorially commenting on tomorrow's elections, states in part: June the 15th will mark the 742nd anniversary of the most important political event—the establishment of the Magna Carta at Runnymede, England. This great charter of English liberties which was forced from King John by the barons, paved the way for fundamental constitutions of guaranteed rights.

Regardless of party, race or creed, every eligible citizen of this district should cast his or her ballot on June 10th. On that day, the Magna Carta will live again, ninety hundred miles from its original birthplace, many years later, but still the powerful, unbiased ally of the people, embodied in one small piece of paper—in itself of little value, but symbolic of the nemesis that ousted Hitler and Mussolini.

But a little animal mentioned in the Winkler Progress, Man., refused for a long time to be ousted. Ralph Kalheim had a unique experience recently when his right to enter the cab of his truck was bitterly disputed by a weasel fighting viciously for her nine babies for which she had made a home in the seat cushion. Ralph was driven out time after time. He finally managed to remove five of the babies before the mother weasel finally desisted.

Referenced to motherhood is made in this little story told in the Oak Lake News, Man. The small son of a doctor answered the phone and told the caller that his father was not at home. "Do you know when he will be in?" he was asked. "No, I don't," said the boy. "He went out on an eternity case."

Sparking of small boys in girls, we learn from the Watrous Manitou, Sask., that Frank Koehler, prominent businessman of Watrous, who passed his 83rd milestone the other week, has remembered his young friends on the occasion of his birthday anniversary, for many years. Needless to say, they look forward to May 27th each year, and all join in thanking Mr. Koehler and wishing for him continued good health—and many more birthdays—plus ice cream. On Monday, Mr. Koehler enjoyed distributing 325 dice cups to the boys and girls.

Kind deeds to one's neighbors are distributed so many times on so many places on the prairies that it is impossible to report all of them—but here's one noticed in a Thank You announcement in the Kelvington Radio, Sask. Words fail to express our feelings of gratitude and thanks to our many very kind friends and neighbors who came to our assistance in working our land, seeding our crop, and doing all our spring work, during the illness and convalescence of our son, Rosario Lemair, of Perleford. Your very great kindness will never be forgotten—signed, Rosario and Jean.

We will now tread on the Prairie Gardener's preserves by passing on two reports. In the Humboldt Journal, Sask., R. X. Broder, brought in some green onions and radishes grown this year. He says his garden was planted on April 22 and includes 21 rows of various vegetables.

And the Simpson district correspondent of the Imperial Review, Sask., states that he had his first feed of asparagus from his garden on May 10, and since then several nice feeds of rhubarb.

Turning from the present to the past, the Northern News, Sask., tells us that when an old home was torn down recently on the Duck Lake Indian reserve, the working men found in one wall of the house a cheque of the Bank of British North America, dated December 31, 1909, and made out to Joe. See-seequah who had endorsed the cheque. "How the cheque had been lodged in the wall of the old house will probably never be explained," comments the reporter. Finally another reminder of elections—this one a story told by the Grayville news reporter for the Dufferin Leader, Carman, Man. "Very few women have any knowledge of parliamentary law," said one man to a neighbor. "You don't know my wife," replied the neighbor—"she's been speaker of the house for 25 years."

Good morning neighbors' and keep smiling.

... In the early days a cobbler didn't need much money to buy his simple tools and equipment. Working with inexpensive and inefficient tools a man had to labor 80 hours a week to produce only a few pairs of shoes.

Is exercise good for bad nerves?

Nervous people who worry more than they should often wonder what they can do to ease the situation. Well, one valuable suggestion is exercise.

Exercise is a help for several reasons: It's good for your morale. It gives you confidence and creates a feeling of well-being which helps you offset the worry and depression which are always associated with nervous problems. If you are doing something every day that you know is good for your body, what can it stronger and more efficient. Since you have confidence and morale can't help but be improved.

2. Exercise has a very good effect on your circulation. If your nerves are to stay healthy or regain their health after some nervous disorder, then they must be well-nourished. They can only be nourished through the circulation of the blood, and the better your circulation the better your nerves will be. The best way to sustain good circulation is through regular exercise.

When you are tense and worried, a long walk is usually better for you than any sedative you can take. This explains why nervous problems are so much more common among physically inactive people than among those who get lots of exercise.

How to catch a fly ball
When catching a high fly, always take it above your head or at head level. You'll be able to keep your eye on it better and if you fumble it, you still have a chance to make another grab for it.

If the fly is very high, go back a few steps, judge it and then move forward to take it. Never stand still when in doubt. Finally, remember to let your hands "give" a little with the ball as it reaches them. Don't grab at the ball or hold your hands stiffly—it can cause knee and elbow strain, and stay cool. You'll be a better fielder if you do.

Mr. C. C. Cranston, provincial agriculturalist, said the trials serve as both demonstration and research projects. He said results are analyzed by the Manitoba Co-operative Fertilizer Board which recommends to farmers the best fertilizer to use on specific soil types.

Last year the Canadian Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service provided 124,133 free clinical RII tests for expectant mothers.

About 270 Give Blood

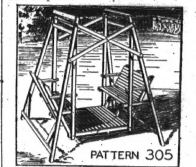

Although complete figures are not yet available, approximately 270 citizens of Humboldt district, including many from Lake Lenore, donated blood at the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic held here last Thursday.

The Clinic started out very quiet with only about 60 appearing during the afternoon. However early in the evening the staff became quite busy and continued so until closing time. —The Journal, Humboldt, Sask.—May 30, 1957.

What is "tennis elbow"?

Tennis elbow is a common injury that nearly every tennis player has trouble with at some time or other. It is usually caused when the player over-extends the arm in making a stroke, or snaps the arm vigorously at the elbow in making a service or overhead shot.

The injury is similar to that suffered by baseball players when they throw too hard, too soon, and can generally be avoided by warming up carefully before making any hard shots, especially serves. What happens is that the bursa sacs around the elbow, containing the fluid that lubricates the joint, are injured or irritated.

The best treatment is the application of heat at frequent intervals and as soon as possible after the injury is noticed. Neglecting such an ailment can make it chronic. A good idea is to use a heat pack of analgesic balm covered by cotton batting. This is applied overnight until there's no sign of soreness left.

Here's a hitting hint: While all baseball experts agree that you should never try to guess what the pitcher is going to throw, most of them feel that the batter should expect every pitch to be the fastest ball he has ever thrown to him. By doing this, you will always be ready for the fast ball and will have plenty of time to react if it is a slower one. In other words, figuring that each pitch is going to be a fast ball will keep you alert and always on your toes. Need extra energy?

Mal Whitfield was once asked what he considered to be the best quick energy food for athletes. Here's his answer: "Though some advocate glucose, I'm in favor of honey. In my experience it is the ideal energy food for athletes. I use it before and after competition and workouts, and find it to be the most effective."

As a special energy drink, Sports College recommends a mixture of honey, tea and orange juice—six tea bags to the pint of water, six teaspoons of honey and orange juice to taste. This is served cool but never cold, about four to six ounces 20 minutes before activity and between periods of play. It's a quick, safe and effective stimulant for use in sports.

Wheat market threat

A serious threat to Canadian exports is posed by the proposed European Common Market Treaty and Free Trade Area plan, C. F. Fraser, Montreal consulting economist, said recently.

Mr. Fraser, addressing the annual meeting of the Silk and Rayon Institute, said "the immediate effect of the two plans on Canada would be almost certain to be unfavorable."

The proposed Anglo-European trading scheme would, briefly, result in the removal of tariff barriers between England, France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. And these countries would have common tariffs against goods from other parts of the world.

Mr. Fraser noted that, at present, these countries purchase one-fourth of Canada's exports, including a large quantity of Western grain.

Both plans, he said, "must unquestionably lead to a relative increase in the discrimination against dollar goods."

While the plans must be supported by Canada as strengthening Western Europe against the communist threat, Mr. Fraser said "it would be the height of folly to support them if, as they develop, Canada and North America are weakened as economic bastions of freedom on this side of the Atlantic."

SHORTER WEEK

The North American work week, since 1880 has shortened by three hours every 10 years — to 40.2 hours in 1955. On that basis 1960 now-talked-of four-day week could be standard in 20 years. The question: Can productivity be stepped up in that period to make four days' work equal seven output.

Good morning, Neighbors:

First a salute to what the Tisdale Recorder, Saskatchewan terms "An Enterprising Ladies' Club." Distraction is no obstacle to the Weekes Ladies Club, who travelled 16 miles to the neighboring village of Bertwell, where an all-day auction was held recently. Learning that no organization had arranged to supply the hungry crowd with lunch during sale, members of the local club packed up 50 loaves of bread and other food requirements into several cars, journeyed to Bertwell and set up shop at 9 a.m. They were all back at 8 p.m. with $80 to the good."

And "all to the good" were these spuds—the local club, the Oak Lake News, Manitoba, reporting that George H. Smith dug up a number of potatoes recently that had been in the ground since last fall. They had not been frozen but were firm, and nice to eat.

"Thanks George," says the editor. Speaking of potatoes, the Watrous Manitou, Saskatchewan, notes that William Scott of the Simpson district has had potatoes showing above ground in his garden for over three weeks. Mr. Scott's nightly job, before going to bed, has been to hustle out and cover them up, to save them in case of frost. Thinks the Manitou editor, "It's going some—when a Scotman can beat an Irishman in growing spuds!"

It's hard to beat a man who publicly owns-up to a mistake. A notice in the Norquay North Star, Saskatchewan, reads: "My heart-felt gratitude to the Hyas telephone operator, the town fire brigade and rural residents who alerted me and their efforts to help out, when, due to my error, the stubble fire which I started, almost destroyed my neighbor's property recently—signed, Dan Crotekno."

Going on to a neighbor's property for a very good reason were the good people mentioned in the Provost News, Alberta — whose Green Glade district reporter states: An old fashioned bee was born at the Theodore Hunt farm, when 25 men and seven women turned out to put the crop in and over some of Mr. Hunt's summerland land, brand calves, and so any available jobs to help out while Mr. Hunt is in Edmonton. This good will story reminds us of this same phrase in the Macgregor Herald, Manitoba. Back a number of years ago, it says, some promoter held a "Good Will Day." One of the horses in the race belonged to Jim Turner, and it ended up managing the minute later's crab apple trees. After that it was known as Crab Apple Jim. Turner tells that the old horse passed on to his final reward recently.

And—comments the Fort Macleod Gazette, Alberta, if friends were working with Miss Edith Hillman is spending more time standing up than sitting down this week, the explanation is simple. She went horseback riding in the Peace district last weekend with Sam Zeeteman. It was her first time in the saddle for over three years.

The word "three" introduces the news item noticed in the Kindersley Clarion, Saskatchewan. Word was recently received of the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. Julius Martin of Flin Flon and formerly of Kindersley. While Mrs. Martin was still in the hospital her eldest daughter, Darlene, a bride of last June, was ushered into the same ward with her first-born, also a son. Later, as the two were comparing the wee uncle and his wee nephew, they noticed a nurse ushering a young husband and his wife down the hall. The husband was Mrs. Martin's son, Barry, and she was soon possessed of another grandson. All three mothers and three sons were reported doing well. Incidentally, Mrs. Martin now has 12 sons and four daughters.

Going from one hospital to another, we read in the Coronation Review, Alberta, that early Tuesday morning the hospital caretaker was awakened by an urgent S.O.S.—the trouble being that a friendly little weasel had found its way in for treatment, but had evidently come in the wrong door through the kitchen. Report being that when the caretaker arrived things looked like an up-to-date floor show. The cook was standing on the table, the laundry lady sitting in the washing machine, the cleaning lady with a mop and a broom at the end of the hall and numerous other female heads peering here and there. After breaking up various dishes and bottles the poor wee thing got in the dryer and was met by his unfortunate death. The report adds: Ruby and Lavenda, being farm girls, were the heroes helping the caretaker run it down.

Here are some children who should have received a reward for saving a duck from embarrassment. According to the Kinistino Post, Saskatchewan, the other day the Wilfred and Gordon Sorenson children were playing ball over the barn when they lost the ball. They hunted all over but failed to find it. Then they noticed one of their tame ducks sitting about where the ball might have been. After considerable fuss they manage to get Mrs. Duck to move—and sure enough, there was the ball! She had mistaken it for an egg, and was going to hatch a young 'un. The children figured they had actually done the duck a good turn by chasing it away as it might have still been sitting there until the snow came in the fall, trying to hatch that rubber ball!

From ducks to hens, the Macgregor Herald, Manitoba, reports that Lindsay Shaw has a black hen that likes to get her eggs near the frying pan. She lays one every day on top of an old stove on the verandah.

Looking from the verandah to the garden, the Indian Head News, Saskatchewan, notes that one of the oldest and most capable gardeners in those parts, Levi Ferguson of Summerberry, is readying his attractive grounds for another season. Ninety years of age, Mr. Ferguson has for many years tilled a garden that has been the source of admiration and envy of the many visitors it has attracted.

And into the gay ninety-and-over class, have travelled those fine oldtimers, whose birthday anniversaries are noted in their local weekly papers. Mrs. T. L. Farney of La Riviere, Manitoba, 90—W. E. Woodward of Consort, Alberta, 90—Mrs. George Muir of Carman, Manitoba, 92—Willis W. Yeager of Mainville, Alberta, 94—and Mrs. Sarah Richardson of Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, 95. Mrs. Richardson has been travelling by boat up the Red River from Emerson, and by covered wagon from Winnipeg to Treherne, Manitoba.

Another real old-time lady receives a tribute in the Peace River Record, Alberta. She is Mrs. C. A. Broughton, still bright and active at the age of 98 who was awarded a life membership in the W.A. to the Anglican Church in Canada in an impressive ceremony at Bishop's Lodge the other evening. Mrs. Broughton feels any day has been wasted in which no special project

Building permits over $420,000 mark

Total of building permits in the City of North Battleford has now passed the $400,000 mark for the year 1957. For the past four years the total building permits have been well in excess of a million dollars each year, and have averaged about one and a half million dollars a year for the four year period. With the present interest in home building, prospects for another year of better than a million dollars are good, according to Building Inspector, Thomas Davidson.—The News-Optimist, North Battleford, Sask.—May 8, 1957.

The Effects of Rainfall Upon the Protein Content of Wheat

A Commentary

In a recent article, we suggested that after five successive years of lower than average protein wheat, Western Canada was hopeful that the year 1957 would bring a high protein crop. Although it is, of course, not possible early in the season to predict what the protein content of the growing crop will be, and though much may happen before the end of July, there are perhaps good reasons to be hopeful this year.

An interesting study made several years ago by the Grain Research Laboratory of the Board of Grain Commissioners sought to determine the average effect of rainfall upon the protein content of wheat grown at certain stations in south-western Saskatchewan. Careful records were kept for five different intervals from April 1 to August 3 for a 14 year period (1927-1940) and these figures were used to determine the average unit decrease in protein content per unit increase in rainfall.

One finding of particular interest was that, while above average rainfall during the growing season generally tends to reduce protein content, additional rainfall occurring in April, as well as in the first half of May and the last half of July has an appreciably greater effect upon protein content than rain falling at other times during the growing season. It will be noted that the times mentioned are periods when the rainfall is normally the lowest.

This season so far rainfall has been below normal and the crop is away to a good start by reason of having been seeded early. Unless, therefore, we run into a very wet season from now on, particularly during the last half of July, there appears to be reasonable hope for a better protein wheat crop in 1957 than for some years past.

School Division Board Meeting

Minutes of the Board meeting of the Wainwright School Division held at the office on Friday, June 7, 1957. All board members present with Councillor V. Dalrymple.

News Report From Edmonton

By Ken Mason

EDMONTON — It will be a long time before the political pundits stop talking about the recent federal election and the startling results it produced. The time as to what actually happened are a dime a dozen, but the most popular appears to be that Canadians merely believed in a change and first after 20 odd years of a Liberal regime and voted for a change.

Liberal supporters will tell you it was a form of protest vote which got out of hand and went further than the majority of voters wanted it to. Progressives and Conservatives will say it was a protest vote which didn't go far enough.

What happened in Alberta perhaps provides ammunition for some of the most fascinating speculation. Alberta was treated to the spectacle of the powerful Liberal party appearing no expert to make its biggest assault in years on this province in an all-out effort to trim Social Credit out of the House of Commons.

And what was the result? Social Credit won at least 13 seats—two more than the party held in the last House of Commons—and Liberal representation dropped from four to one. Even the Conservative party, written off by many as a dead issue in Alberta, increased its hold from two seats to three, at the expense of the Liberals.

At the time of writing there still an outside chance that the Liberals might end up with none of the 17 Alberta seats in the House of Commons.

J. M. Dechene, veteran Liberal MP for Athabasca, had a slim majority over his Social Credit opponent, Archie McPhail. According to the returning officer for the riding a heavy armed force vote could cause an upset.

Liberal party officials and candidates must be doing some soul-searching to determine what they did wrong in Alberta. They put a tremendous effort into a well-organized campaign aimed at grabbing a substantial number of the Alberta seats away from Social Credit.

Some observers think they may have overdone it. Their major appeal was an invitation to Alberta to join the rest of Canada, have a voice in government, and stop voting for "splinter parties."

Albertans are individuals and they have their share of pride. Perhaps they heard just a little too much of this argument. They heard it not only from local candidates but from the small army of federal cabinet ministers who invaded the province.

Maybe to many of them it smacked of arrogance and was taken as a suggestion that the Liberals were certain of a new mandate which would strengthen the idea that a government in power is capable of giving efficient government.

The result of the voting may be Alberta's way of saying, "No one is going to tell us we can't vote for splinter parties. We'll do it if we want. So there."

There is little relationship between provincial and federal politics, but it should be recalled that the 1955 provincial general election was remarkably like the recent federal election. The protest vote didn't go quite so far, but a large chunk was chipped off Social Credit's majority in the House after 20 years in power. It seems to strengthen the idea that a government in power for too long loses much of its popular appeal.

In the months ahead it will be interesting to watch the enlarged Social Credit group in the House. The shaky government will have to depend on co-operation from the Socialists and the CCF if it is to remain in power.

So the way it turns out, Albertans voted for a "splinter party" but they have their strong voice in government as well—for the time being, at least.

Your correspondent's prediction of the election outcome turned out somewhat seriously except in one respect. We said CCF wasn't a factor, and this was borne out by the number of CCF seats. But the voters did vote on deposits. As for the part about the Liberals gaining one or two seats, well, you can't be right all the time.

Provincial Treasurer Ted Hinman is still talking about municipal financing. At a refresher course for school and municipal administrators in Banff last week, he predicted an increase in municipal debt.

Interest rates will not come down in the immediate future but our people will demand more services," he said. "There is no reason for gloom, but I think it is high time to keep our people informed and bring them face to face with realities," he said.

THE FARMERS UNION

Every farmer should be a member of his own local F.U.A. group. It is an organization dedicated to his welfare and the solution of his production and marketing problems. It is the most effective means of presenting his case before governments and the court of public opinion.

After attending a Farmers Union Local meeting earlier this month, it is hard to understand why its membership is not much closer to the 100 percent mark. The discussions which took place were interesting, the meeting was well handled and the decisions represented sound thinking and sincerity of purpose. Why are a great many farmers outside the fold?

Perhaps it is for the same reason that all Christians are not in church every Sunday, or all business and professional men are not members of their Chamber of Commerce. Disinterest and an unwillingness to carry a fair share of the load on the part of some, is an affliction in every walk of life and, in this respect, the farmer is no different from anyone else.

As it is presently constituted the FUA is doing a fine job for its community as well as its members. Every improvement in the lot of the farmer is a boost for the rural areas which are dependent upon the agricultural industry. The FUA movement deserves more attention and support from the businessmen and urban residents who serve the farmers needs.—Wetaskiwin Times.

Vermilion, Alberta,
June 11, 1957.

Editor,
Irma Times,
IRMA, Alberta.

Dear Sir: May I take advantage of your valuable space to express to you and to all in the area served by the Viking News my sincere thanks for the co-operation and assistance that was extended to me during the recent election campaign.

I can assure you that I have been appreciative of all the courtesies extended to me during the campaign.

It will be my hope that the newly elected Government will meet the wishes of our people and that Canada will continue her forward march in the years that lie ahead.

The people having spoken in no uncertain terms, it is to be hoped that all citizens will co-operate to insure a continuation of sound government and that partisan feelings will not be permitted to interfere with our progress in the future.

That there was no biased or unfair personal reference between the candidates has been a matter of the greatest satisfaction to me, as I am sure it has been to those who opposed my candidature, and I am convinced that the other candidates were entirely sincere in their desire to be of service to our constituency and to Canada.

Yours faithfully,

Journey to Hawaii

by Mrs. A. P. Firkus

From the pineapple plant we went to the Oahu Sugar Co. and went through the sugar mill. We were shown a movie first before going through the mill. The cane is washed to remove trash and rocks gathered with cane in harvesting. It is squeezed between huge rollers to separate the juice from the sugar juice. The juice is then mixed with a lime solution and sent through heaters to clarify. Lime and foreign material settles, the foam rises and the clarified juice is drawn out from the centre. The sediment and foam are finally put through filters and juice is again clarified and balance of the sediment is returned to the cane fields as a fertilizer. The fibre from the cane is burned in the huge boilers to provide steam for boiling the juice and for operating engines and generators furnishing power for the factory and plantation. Some of the fibre is used to make a building board similar to masonite. We tasted the raw T. May and T. D. dark but 96 to 98 percent cane sugar. About 95 percent of the raw sugar is shipped to the U.S. mainland for refining and the balance is refined for island consumption.

Took a drive one afternoon around Barber's Point which is in the opposite direction from Honolulu. Here the island is so much different that one can hardly believe that only 20 miles away there can be such desert lands. They get very little rain so there isn't too much vegetation, only cactus. There are nice beaches but are not kept up as tourists are usually not taken there. We did see a sausage tree which is very queer looking as there are large marrow shaped things hanging by a vine that resemble large sausages. The people who had this tree were very ambitious as they had taken time to paint them in different colors which made a very lovely sight. The others we saw were not painted. We also saw a rat which had things that the assembled rats hanging by the tail.

Once again time to say Aloha to the island, as per usual, the arrival and sailing of the Lurline is practically a holiday. Great crowds on the docks and passengers bedecked in leis and the bands playing. It is a very gala sailing and on board was General Shelly of the Marine Corps so the Royal Hawaiian and Marine Bands were competing. Streamers flowing from the decks and passengers throwing their leis to make sure that they will return to the shore make a wonderful sight as the ship pulls away from the dock. The saying is that if your lei returns to the shore you will again visit the island.

The voyage across the very blue Pacific was enjoyable on a fairly calm ocean. Docked in Los Angeles where we were met by Ambrose's cousin. Took a tour of Los Angeles, Hollywood and Beverly Hills. Saw quite a number of the stars homes. Along the coast from Los Angeles to San Francisco is a very nice drive with very large lemon orchards and fruit and truck gardening farms. The orange trees were just starting to bloom and most other fruit trees, walnut and almond trees were blooming which made a very pretty sight along the highway. Stopped at the Santa Barbara mission, which was one of the original ones built by the priests in the early days of California. Back in San Francisco and a day or two resting and more sight seeing. Went over the Oakland Bridge, which is supposed to be 8 miles long and visited in Richmond. Back to San Francisco and over the Golden Gate Bridge and, at least, a start for home. Along the big highway, visited the Asati Winery, took a tour through the winery, sampled wine and sent cards, a very interesting tour and place. Through the Giant Redwoods which were bigger and taller than I expected. On to the Canadian border and all along the highways orchards in full bloom and red yards ablaze in color as it is ripe and daylight time but getting a little cooler as we travelled northward.

Arrived at Vancouver in the rain but had a nice visit with the folks and paid calls to quite a number of friends and after six days started eastward for Alberta. Stopped in Chilliwack to visit friends who had moved there and met Mrs. Gwinn of Irma visiting her parents. After a night there we continued on eastward, as we got closer to the Alberta border it grew cooler and we noticed snow in low areas and the fruit trees hadn't started blooming yet. Took the Canadian route through the Cascades which is quite a drive and a very narrow road. There was quite a bit of snow in places. Stopped for the night with relatives at Castlegar and on again in the morning. We stopped

Canadian receives highest international nursing award

The highest international nursing award, the Florence Nightingale Medal, has been granted to Miss Helen McArthur, B.Sc., M.A., R.N., National Director of Nursing Services of the Canadian Red Cross Society, by the International Committee of the Red Cross, Geneva. The gold medal, bearing the likeness of Florence Nightingale, was established in 1912, and is given for outstanding contributions towards the development and prestige of the nursing profession.

Presentation of the medal took place on Tuesday evening at the York Club where the national officers of the Canadian Red Cross Society gathered to honor this outstanding nurse. Miss Florence H. M. Emory, honorary adviser in nursing of the Canadian Red Cross Society made the presentation to Miss McArthur on behalf of the officers. Miss Emory herself was awarded the Florence Nightingale medal in 1953.

Miss McArthur received her Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Alberta Hospital and her Master's degree in supervision and teaching from Columbia University, New York. She began her nursing career as a public health nurse in the High River area of Alberta and was successively director of the School of Nursing at the University of Alberta and superintendent of the public health nursing branch of the Alberta Department of Health.

In 1946 she joined the staff of the Canadian Red Cross Society as National Director of Nursing Services. In July, 1954, she was loaned to the League of Red Cross Societies and served in Korea as their Associate Relief Co-ordinator for 18 months. While there she was an adviser to the Korean Red Cross and was responsible for channeling all relief which was forwarded by Red Cross Societies throughout the world. In recognition of her services in Korea the Republic of Korea awarded her a scroll and gold pin. Miss McArthur has always been active in nursing organization work; she was president of the Canadian Nurses' Association for four years and has served as president of the University of Alberta Hospital Alumnae Association, first vice-president of the Alberta Association of Registered Nurses and chairman of the Nursing Section of the Canadian Public Health Association.

Seven other Canadian nurses have been awarded this medal since its inception. They are Miss M. Macdonald, Matron-in-Chief, Canadian Expeditionary Forces, World War I (1927); Miss Anne Hartley, Matron-in-Chief, Hospitals of the Department of Pensions and National Health, World War I (1929); Miss Vivian A. Tremaine, Nurse-in-Charge, Red Cross Seaport Nursery Service (1931); Miss Jean I. Gunn, Honorary Adviser in Nursing, Canadian Red Cross Society and Superintendent of Nurses, Toronto General Hospital (1935); Miss Jean E. Browne, National Director, Canadian Junior Red Cross (1939); Miss E. Kathleen Russell, Chairman of Red Cross Nursing and Director of the School of Nursing, University of Toronto (1949); and Miss Florence H. M. Emory, Honorary Adviser in Nursing, Canadian Red Cross Society and Professor of Nursing of the University of Toronto (1953). The latter two have recently retired from the University and are living in Toronto.

High winds cause of power outage

High winds in Saskatchewan were given as the cause of Humboldt and district being without power last Wednesday and Thursday, according to a statement issued by the Saskatchewan Power Corporation.

Power in Humboldt first went off shortly before noon on Wednesday of last week. It was returned in town about two p.m., but in the district power was not returned until about 7:30 that evening. There have been recurring outages for brief periods on several occasions since.—The Journal, Humboldt, Sask.—May 9, 1957.

IDLING RATE

The heart of a grown man at rest pumps out into the arteries about four to six quarts of blood each minute.

Authority for this statement is the Canadian Association of Consumers, Sask., branch, which informs The News that something the association has worked on for years and at last is coming.

Information is that a set of standard children's body sizes is now accepted, from which specifications are being worked on for different kinds of clothing. Once the tolerance for good fit is agreed on, preparations for Canada Standard clothing sizes can proceed fairly quickly.

It has been a tremendous and time-consuming job, but the CAC feels it is on the right track in establishing such standard sizes. Says the CAC: "What a time saver it will be! Just think how much easier it will be when we shop just to have the correct body measurements instead of shopping for a small eight-year size or a large six-year size, depending on the make of the garment."—The News, Indian Head, Sask.—May 16, 1957.

A rose for mother!

While many local home gardeners are gazing fondly at their first tulips of the season, Mrs. A. Barnett reports the first full-blown Rose! And a beautiful deep red double one at that.

Mrs. Barnett stored the plant in her basement last fall, gave it an occasional watering and in March brought it to her kitchen where three buds soon appeared. As soon as the first really warm day arrived Mrs. Barnett put the box out into the garden where one of the buds quickly developed.—The Enterprise, Selkirk, Man., May 8, 1957.

EXTRA WINNIPEG

During 1956 Canada, by immigration and natural increase, boasted population by 516,000 or, say, by the equivalent of the folk who go to make up Winnipeg. Thus the size of the domestic market was increased to the degree of an extra Winnipeg and by the same token the country's dependence on the international market was lowered by that degree.

So good

Here's bread with a tasty difference! Dependable Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast makes it quick and easy!

Rolls-out Bread

- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1½ tablespoons shortening

Stir in 1½ cups boiling water and let stand until lukewarm.

2. In the meantime, measure into a large bowl ½ cup lukewarm water
- 2 teaspoons granulated sugar
- 2 teaspoons Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast

Let stand 10 minutes, THEN stir well.

Stir in prepared rolled oat mixture and

- 2 tablespoons molasses
- 2 cups once-sifted all-purpose flour and beat until smooth and elastic. Work in an additional 2½ cups (about) once-sifted all-purpose flour.

3. Turn out on lightly-floured board and knead until smooth and elastic; place in greased bowl. Brush top of dough with melted shortening. Let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk—about 1 hour.

4. Punch down dough. Turn out and divide in half. Let rest 15 minutes, then shape each half into a loaf. Place in greased loaf pans (8½ x 4½ inches, top inside measure). Brush with melted butter, margarine or shortening. Cover. Let rise until doubled in bulk—about 45 minutes. Bake in moderately hot oven, 375°, about 50 minutes. Yields 2 loaves.

Manitoba health plan well underway

The new hospital relief plan set up by the provincial government is proving both practical and efficient.

Minister of Health and Welfare, Hon. R. W. Bend, reports that the entire hospital bills of 168 patients in Manitoba have been assumed by the government. An additional 35 applications have been received.

Under the new hospital plan, patients who have received hospital care for more than 130 days qualify to apply for full reimbursement. First outlined by Mr. Bend in the legislature last winter, the plan was put into effect April 1.

Mr. Bend said he expected the plan will give much needed financial relief to people who are forced to stay in hospital for long periods of time.

TAXES UP

Today, in Canada's period of greatest prosperity, Canadians are paying an over-all tax bill larger than that which they paid during the Second World War. Of National Income two percent more goes to the tax coffers than did in 1944. But in actual money terms the tax contribution, due to such tremendous increases in net National Income, amounts to 140 percent.

Sherwood, North Dakota—Canadian soldier apprentices were credited by Mayor Russell Steeves with making this community's 20th annual Memorial Day services a marked success.

And the contingent from Camp Shilo, Man., was told by the American Legion commander: "We admire you and only wish that you were young again and able to carry out in our country the service which you are performing for Canada."

Also taking part in the service here were members of six Canadian Legion Branches and veterans from the Manitoba, Saskatchewan and North Dakota border areas. The 16 and 17-year-old soldiers were trooped down the ranks. About 1,200 spectators watched the ceremony located 10 miles south of Gainsborough, Sask.

Four soldier apprentices stood guard with arms reversed at the memorial to the Unknown Soldier for the wreath-laying ceremony following a remembrance service. Jack Burton, retired customs officer and member of the Carleton Place, Leg. Branch, placed the wreath. Major Frank Michie of

St. James Will Join Suburbs in Metro Exploration Talks

The City of St. James will join with other members of the Greater Winnipeg family of municipalities at a meeting to be held on Wednesday evening in the Fort Garry municipal hall with a view to presenting a close front on the matter of a metropolitan plan. The meeting is being convened by the Fort Garry mayor, R. D. Chase, who is taking the initiative in attempting to present a solid front for a final brief from all the municipalities in view of the recent total amalgamation brief presented by the city of Winnipeg.

The Leader, St. James, Man.

Kington, Ont., was in command of the Camp Shilo group.

Canadian Legion Branches taking part in the ceremonies were Gainsborough, Carleton Place, Oxbow, Alameda and the combined branch of Storhacks, Nottingham and Alida, Sask. Legion parade marshal was Sidney Mann of Storhacks.

Members of the American Legion Post 213 have been invited to take part in the Canadian Remembrance Day ceremonies on November 11 at Gainsborough, Sask.

Ask any gardener

By Thomas Usk

Vacations are no problem with me. How can I go off and leave the garden?

Whenever my wife mentions a vacation, I spread my hands in a gesture that implies with what alacrity I would leap to spend a king's ransom at once crowded resort if I were free.

My wife understands me. And despite her occasional protest, she is in favor of that back yard garden. It's a safety valve. That's where I cultivate serenity and string beans, cabbages and contentment.

"What's so good about a garden?" my civilized friends want to know. The back yard looks as sleekly groomed as I do not. The flower borders are trim, the lawn precisely edged. And there I stand, a study in grime and perspiration.

Dinner guests who are supposed to be dazzled by our strawberries are skeptical instead. "Money can buy such fruit," their attitude implies. "Why exert yourself?"

The pleasure of gardening is one, perhaps, that a man must discover for himself. Those first tomatoes in our back yard were planted by a neighbor, whose yard adjoins mine. He is a retired farmer in his eighties, durable as an oak. After he had given me some of the fruits from his labor, he introduced me to the labor itself. Soon it was a labor of love. The lawn in the back disappeared as my enthusiasm spread.

My neighbor lends a hand in my garden occasionally, when he runs out of work in his own. He can work twice as hard as I, with half the effort.

I find it labor with no mental strain. I there's frustration involved, it's the tolerable kind. A stunt of corn may wither, but it won't talk back. There are no qualms in fighting cutworms to a standstill. Let the birds have a holiday with ripening cherries. The season is young and there will be other—other birds, other cherries, other seasons.

In a garden, a man may be alone with his thoughts. Peace enters his soul from his pores. The nerves relax as muscles tighten. A combination of hard work and solitude in the open air produces an exhilarating weariness. Followed by a shower, a snack and a siesta, it makes a man feel like a million dollars tax-exempt.

A man's garden is his castle. It's also a hobby he can share. "I can be prevailed upon," I tell my son, "to let you do some digging for me."

"Thanks, pal," he shudders. But he's proud of his superior speed and stamina with a spading fork. When he pulls a Tom Sawyer, I find a crew of boys vying for top honors in noise and energy. My son feels quite indulgent toward me as he provides needed help.

So does his little sister, convinced that I could never succeed alone. Together we sow corn, beans, carrots. Together we transplant seedlings. A couple of years ago, her dubious brand of help reminded me of the inscription in a book: "This book is dedicated to my wife, without whose help it would have been finished in half the time."

Now my seven-year-old is less of a handicap. And our time is well spent. It means something to her when a tendril pushes through the ground and is first two leaves unfold. Then her interest wanes until the fruits begin to form; the emerald green peppers, the doll-sized tomatoes. Her interest is a full flower, come picking and eating time.

She needs supervision here. One yank and up comes the whole bean plant. At damage done by a helpful child, I emit a real yelp of anguish. Then perspective sets in. What are a few plants compared with a small thumb getting greener every year?

My wife is a partner in the harvest, though not a silent one. "Just when I think I've sealed that last jar and labeled that last package," she complained last fall, "I find the counter full of another mountain of tomatoes."

"No blight this year," I said complacently.

"Except on my life," she muttered. "I blanch with the asparagus, I simmer with the syrups."

Out came my first brand of soft soap. "Look how well-nourished your family is. You're one with the pioneer women."

"And beginning to feel just as ancient," she retorted.

What grows in a garden? There are the obvious good things to eat, of course; a finer brand than any market purveys. No one has really tasted corn who hasn't picked, dunked and devoured it within the quarter hour.

But there is, also more than meets the eye. For the home-loving man, a garden keeps him right where he wants to be. Who will plant, if he gets the wanderlust? Who will weed, water and spray? He and his family don't lightly indulge in that great modern pastime of traveling bumper to bumper on congested highways.

What grows in a garden? Co-

Taber Fire Chief Dies While Driving Utility Truck on Local Streets

Stricken with a heart attack while driving the department's utility truck along 52nd St. about 10 a.m. Wednesday morning, Taber's fire chief, Joseph Theodore (Slim) Jahnren, 79, passed away suddenly in the truck.

Fortunately the late Mr. Jahnren was travelling slowly and the truck grazed the fence at Henry Doell's residence causing some damage, but nothing serious; the truck was not damaged.

operation grows there, as the family shares the work. Generous impulses grow there, as the harvest is divided with the friends and neighbors. Stability grows there, in working partnership with nature.

What grows in a garden, gives every season a special flavor. Ask any gardener.

Honey Bun Coffee Cake

1. In an 8-inch square cake pan, melt 3 tablespoons butter or margarine.

Drizzle with 1/2 cup honey and sprinkle with 1/2 cup broken salted nuts.

2. Scald 1/2 cup milk. Remove from heat and stir in 1/4 cup honey.

1/4 teaspoon salt 1/2 cup shortening. Cool to lukewarm.

3. In the meantime, measure into a large bowl 1/2 cup lukewarm water 1 teaspoon granulated sugar.

and stir until sugar is dissolved. Sprinkle with contents of 1 envelope Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast.

Let stand 10 minutes, THEN stir well. Stir the lukewarm milk mixture and 1 well-beaten egg.

1/2 teaspoon vanilla. Sift together once 2 cups once-sifted all-purpose flour.

1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon. Sift dry ingredients into yeast mixture and stir until blended—about 1 minute.

4. Spoon mixture into prepared cake pan. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk—about 1 1/2 hours. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 375°, about 25 minutes. Turn out of pan immediately. Serve warm.

Local News

Mrs. T. Donoghue of Flint, Michigan, has been a guest here with her brother-in-law and sister-in-law. This week she accompanied Miss A. Donoghue to Edmonton where they will spend a few days before returning to Irma.

We are glad to know that Lotie Guy, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Guy is able to be home from hospital and is making a good recovery after being severely scalded when she had the misfortune to fall into a pail of hot water.

A very enjoyable family reunion picnic was held at Clear Lake recently when 32 members of the Prosser families gathered together there. Those from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Prosser, Bobby and Lorna from Chauvin and Mr. and Mrs. Ervine Goodale from Dundas, Ont.

Mrs. E. S. Taylor left on Monday last for Stratford, Ont. for a month's holiday with relatives there. She expects to attend the Shakespearean Festival while at Stratford.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Knudson of El Sabanto, Calif., are visiting here.

The regular meeting of the Evening Group of the W.A. will be held at the home of Mrs. R. Dempsey June 23 at 8:30 p.m. Devotional, Mrs. Inkin. Program, Mrs. Prosser. Hostesses, Mrs. Burton and Mrs. Smallwood. Roll Call, donation of a kitchen utensil.

Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Thurston left Irma this week for a holiday trip to Moodie, B.C. The Rev. Leo Thurston and his wife and family will also be at Moodie as Leo is taking charge of the Anglican church there for a month while the regular pastor is away.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurston hope to call on Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Targett and other old friends while at the coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Inglis of Warton, Ont., have been visiting here at the home of his brother the Rev. H. W. Inglis. Mr. and Mrs. Inglis are on a trip from Warton to Vancouver and back and plan to visit Irma again on their way home.

At time of writing—Wednesday—our long dry spell continues and crops, pastures and gardens are beginning to suffer badly. We hope that by the time this appears in print the long awaited rains will have come and that all next week the well dressed man or woman will be wearing rubber boots and a rain coat.

At noon on Wednesday the fire siren whirled out and all able bodied citizens came forth to quickly put out a grass fire which had started on some back lots in the residential section of Main St. The fire was soon extinguished and no damage done.

Mrs. M. Alred and son Shane have gone to Edmonton to meet Mr. Alred who has returned from the Dew Line at Cambridge Bay where he has been stationed the past five months.

We are glad to see that Flo Allen a former Irma lass, is one of the candidates for Queen of the Calgary Stampede. Flo is now a second year student in the Calgary General hospital, having enrolled in the school of nursing in October, 1955. Her many friends here wish her the best of luck.

Mr. and Mrs. Mah Anholt of Outlook, Sask., are visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Verne Sampson.

BRIDE AND GROOM NAY YEAR IN HONOLULU

Baskets of pink and white gladioli were the setting of an attractive summer wedding in All Saints Pro-Cathedral when Miss Marion Lucille Tucker, a graduate in nursing from the U. of A., became the bride of Dr. William Bradford Carpenter, a graduate in medicine from the U. of A. Dr. and Mrs. Carpenter will go to Honolulu where Dr. Carpenter will be attached to the staff of Queen's hospital for a year.

Very Rev. Gerald Birch read the vows for the daughter of Mr. Walter Tucker, M.P. for Rosethorn, Sask., and Mrs. Tucker, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bryer C. Carpenter of Kinsella, Alberta. Mr. Tucker gave his daughter in marriage.

For her wedding the bride chose a powder blue knitted dress styled on empire lines with bateau neckline. Her picture hat was of oyster silk and her accessories en-tone. A nosegay of ophelia roses and iris complemented her ensemble.

The bride was preceded up the aisle by her sister Miss Shirley Tucker of Ottawa who was her only attendant. Her dress to suit style in pink tulle was complemented with white accessories. Her nosegay was of pink carnations.

Following the church service a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Kaufman.

Mr. Stuart Bird proposed the toast to the bride.

For her wedding trip to Hawaii the bride wore a white knitted coat with her wedding gown. A corsage of honey toned roses and blue carnations was pinned at her shoulder.
